SUMMARY OF THE REASONS FOR DECISION:

The DVD Dangerous Things is classified as:

Objectionable except if the availability of the publication is restricted to persons who have attained the age of 18 years.

The publication is a DVD containing a sexually explicit feature that is identical to a feature contained on a video recording of the same title (OFLC No. 1916) which has been previously classified by the Office of Film and Literature Classification. The decision was registered on 7 November 2000. The classification of that video recording was "Objectionable except if the availability of the publication is restricted to persons who have attained the age of 18 years", with the descriptive note "Contains explicit sex scenes".

The DVD contains a number of other components such as trailers and still images, many of which are also sexually explicit. Although some components contain degrading and dehumanising elements, these additional components do not contain anything that would result in the DVD receiving a different classification to that given to the video recording.
